Notes

1) Users must pay all expenses on medicines up to a certain amount (subsidy ceiling). Beyond that point, the user charges gradually decrease until the annual expenditure reaches a certain amount (annual ceiling), after which the expenditure is covered in full.

2) Approx. The figure covers prescription medicines for which a general or individual subsidy is available.

3) Patients must pay the first ISK 22 000. After that, patients pay 15 per cent of the expenses until their share reaches ISK 31 750. They then pay 7.5 per cent until the patient's total annual expenses amount to ISK 62 000. When the expenditure exceeds that amount, patients are subsidised in full. Lower subsidy ceilings apply to pensioners, disabled people and children and young people under 22. They pay the first ISK 11 000, 15% until their cost is ISK 17 900 and 7.5 per cent until patient's cost is ISK 41 000.
